Seen & Heard Around Murray

Now, here comes Paul Denton, age 7, and says he needs to fix a leaf collection for his Cub Scout work.

So we says, let's go Paul and we'll find more different leaves than you ever know existed. So we do.

Paul and his mother accompany us out to the house and we start in with the Gingko, then the Hickory, the Sealy Bark, the Ash, the Post Oak, the Sumach, the Wild Cherry, the Cedar, the Black Gum, the Tulip Poplar, the Elm, the Iron Oak and the Buckeye.

We were putting the leaves in envelopes and printing the name on each envelope, and we ran out of envelopes. We looked around and we could see a White Birch, Bald Cypress, Redwood, Persimmon, Sweet Gum, Red Oak, Loblolly Pine, White Pine, Magnolia, Box Elder, Scotch Pine, Chestnut. We could have even gotten into the flowering shrubs and things like that, but like we said, we ran out of envelopes.

On the way back we told Paul he should go by the Murray Hospital grounds and get him one of those big Sycamore leaves from the gigantic Sycamore in the front yard of the old hospital.

Now comes Max Churchill with a resume of how a body is handled in Viet Nam from the time a casualty occurs until the body is returned to the United States. We will print this for the interest of folks as soon as we can read through it and digest it ourselves.

Our house all shook up at the present time with the third oldest due in most any time from Okinawa. Supposed to leave from there June 5, but he says he thinks it will be May 28 over there. This would mean he is already on the way if he is correct. He could arrive any time then from this weekend all through the next week.

The net result is that no one knows when he will leave and no one knows when he will arrive. Their day arrives a day before ours does, for instance it is May 31 over there now. Knowing the Armed Forces as we do, no body will know anything until it has happened.

"There would be no great ones, if there were no little ones."

George Herbert

"I was born under that flag. I fought for that flag, and I'm going to college because of that flag." Bill Pierson, football star, San Diego State College.

Our granddaughter now has five teeth, three on top and two on the bottom. The second one from the left on top, looking at her, meets the left one on the bottom.

She scared the heck out of all of us the other day when she started walking on the side of her foot. We envisioned all kinds of difficulty, bone conformation, etc. Took her to the doctor, then to a bone man where x-rays were taken.

Brought her home and all of a sudden she was walking on once again. Seems that she had a tiny cut on the bottom of her little toe and she was merely favoring the toe by walking on the side of her foot.

We have done the same thing a thousand times after cutting our big toe on a piece of glass or sticking a briar in it.

Folks our age should not be around babies. It's too hard on the nerves.

Thanks to Mrs. Leon C. Jones

Murray High Graduation Held At Stadium Thursday

One hundred seven students received diplomas last night in the commencement exercises at Murray High School. The ceremony was held in the stadium and a large crowd of parents, relatives and friends joined the graduates for the occasion.

The four honor students took part in the program. Leslie Furgerson, third ranking student, gave the invocation. Salutatorian Kathy Crider welcomed the guests and reviewed the past years of school life for the class. Valedictorian Dick West challenged the class to "do something with your lives."

Fourth honor graduate, Richard Blalock gave the benediction. Superintendent Fred Schultz used the words of Astronaut Buzz Aldrin, "I see a Hill," as the subject of his address. He emphasized that the future facing these graduates would be made up of hills but that "Our Almighty Father has given you the ability and ways to climb the hills."

The senior mixed ensemble sang "God Made Our Hands." Mrs. Joan Bowker directed. Principal Eli Alexander congratulated the class and presented the awards. The following students graduated with high distinction having an average of 90% or better for their four years of school: Richard Blalock, Mark Blankenship, Kathy Cook, Kathy Crider, Nancy Duiguid, Leslie Furgerson, Susan Hale, Maritz Shelton, Celia Simmons, Beth Tuck, and Dick West.

Rain May Slow Memorial Day Race

By ED SAINSBURY
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Prospects for rain threatened to slow auto racing's fastest cars and drivers to turnpike speeds today and perhaps abbreviate the annual 500-mile race to its shortest distance ever, as little as 232 1/2 miles.

Forecasters said there was a 30 per cent chance of rain during the race, increasing to 60 per cent later in the afternoon. The annual race, which pulls some 300,000 fans into the capacious Speedway grounds, was scheduled to start at noon (EDT).

Three former winners—defending champion Mario Andretti, three-time victor A. J. Foyt, and Bobby Unser—plus the faster qualifier, Al Unser, were rated the favorites.

If racing luck holds for the drivers and fans, the rain is deferred three hours, then the probability is that a jackpot of more than $900,000 will be decided at the entire distance with the victory receiving about $225,000.

It was likely, too, that for the full 500 miles, barring a rash of accidents slowing the field to between 120 and 125 miles per hour, the winner will boast a record speed, surpassing Andretti's 156.887 miles per hour last year.

Even cloudy skies could change the race strategy for the entire field since every driver will be out to seize the lead and hold it in case the race is called. The minute it starts to rain, the red stop flag will go out. And if that happens after 101 laps, the race is over.

Weather Alters Tactics

"One hundred and one laps 252 1/2 miles is a race," chief steward Harlan Fengler warned the starting 33 drivers. "If it's called by rain before that, we're obligated to restart. If we've gone 101 laps, it must be called."

If forced to restart, the race would be picked up at the point where it was halted, not restarted from the beginning.

In good weather, the race winner should finish the entire 200-lap chase on the 2 1/2-mile asphalt course in a little over three hours, averaging 55 or 56 seconds for each lap.

Test Of Drivers

Every car in the field was capable of that speed and the question should settle down to which machines can endure the pounding, twisting and tension required by the whirling dash.

As evidence of the stress placed on both drivers and machines, only nine of the 33 drivers starting today ever have finished the entire 500 miles in this race before.

Four drivers—Rick Muther, Dick Simon, Donnie Allison and Greg Weld—will be running in the race for the first time.

While the race is wide open, Bobby Grogan, Al Unser, Dan Foyt, Andretti, Al Unser, Dan

NOW AT HOME

Mrs. Ed Duiguid was released from the Murray-Calloway County Hospital on Thursday and is now at the home of Mrs. Opal Fulton. She suffered a heart attack recently.

Gurney, Lloyd Ruby, Johnny Rutherford, Mark Donohue, Art Pollard and Bobby Unser were the most favored.

Al Unser, who qualified at 170.211 m. p. h. to win the pole, Rutherford, only one-hundredth of a second slower in the four-lap qualifying run, and Foyt start in the front row—for whatever break that may be. Ruby, who blew up six engines in practice runs, starts in the ninth row. The rest of these veterans spread out between them.

The race has been stopped only three times by rain. Twice, in 1915 and 1967, it was resumed. In 1950 Johnny Parsons won at 345 miles.

No Injuries Reported In Collisions In The City Of Murray Friday

Ellis Sells Farm For $347,500

One of the largest farm real estate deals ever transacted in Henry County took place last week when Mr. and Mrs. Herman K. Ellis sold 1,712 acres of farmland in the northeast part of the county to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hastings of Newbern, Tenn., for $347,500.

The Ellises, who live in Murray, began acquiring the huge Henry County acreage in June 1964 when they purchased the 240-acre farm owned by heirs of the late Mrs. John H. Arnett. During the next two years they purchased four other adjacent farms and wound up with 1,712 acres, most of which is under cultivation. The Ellises have cleared and vastly improved the farm properties they purchased, and the major crops produced have been corn, soybeans, tobacco and wheat.

The first farm purchased by the Ellises was conveyed to them by Mrs. Mary Frances Melton and Robert E. Arnett on June 29, 1964. The 240 acres in this tract was known as the Arnett tract, and it was first owned by John J. Edmonds, great grandfather of the late Mrs. John H. Arnett. Edmonds acquired the land from the State of Tennessee in a land grant in 1843, at a cost of 12½ cents an acre.

On Aug. 10, 1965, the Ellises bought the adjoining F. L. Bucy farm, of 149.5 acres. On Oct. 4, 1965, they bought 102.5 acres from Peyton Nance, and on Oct. 11 the same year bought the R. M.

Hutson land, consisting of 136.6 acres.

On April 30, 1966, the Ellises completed their purchases when they bought from Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Stewart a 663-acre Stewart tract, a 95-acre E. J. Hutson tract and the 95-acre Tolley Clayton tract.

KENTUCKY FLAG EVOLVED THRU STATE HISTORY

By Dee Giannini
Staff Writer

FRANKFORT, Ky. — "United We Stand, Divided We Fall" was the timely motto chosen by the Kentucky General Assembly Dec. 20, 1792, as the inscription of the Great Seal of the Bluegrass State.

But it was not until 126 years later that the seal took its place at the heart of the state flag. A look at the history of the flag reveals some surprising things.

The flag itself was not authorized by the General Assembly until March 26, 1918. The statute creating the flag said, "The official state flag of the Commonwealth of Kentucky shall be of navy blue silk or bunting, with the seal of the Commonwealth of Kentucky encircled by a wreath of goldenrod embroidered, printed or stamped on the center thereof. The dimensions of the flag shall vary."

However no flags were made after the design was authorized until the spring of 1920.

Preparations were being made at the time for a military review at Camp Zachary Taylor in Louisville. The colors of the 84th Division were to be turned over to Gov. Edwin P. Morrow by Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall during the review.

A state flag was deemed appropriate for the occasion, and Governor Morrow ordered one made.

The first official state flag was made by the Bryan Pleafing Co. of Louisville with only two days notice. Predictably it was a botched job.

Mrs. W. B. Hoke of Louisville was chairman of the committee to design the flag, and Mrs. James B. Camp actually furnished the design.

But after the unfortunate military review, Credo Harris was charged with refining details of the flag. He gathered a committee of the leading artists of Louisville to help, but nothing ever came of the project.

The next version of the state flag appeared during the administration of Gov. Flem D. Sampson. It was made in 1927 or 1928 by Miss Jessie Cox (Mrs. Joseph Burgess) at the request of Mrs. J. J. Taylor Cannon, secretary of the Historical Society.

Miss Cox painted the seal in a circle of white satin and applied it to navy blue silk. The rest of the design was painted on the silk. The General Assembly in 1962 passed a law designating the version of the Great Seal of the Co-for sending us the poem by Edwin Markham "How the Great Guest Came." Mrs. Jones' father was D. J. Miller, a thinking man with an eye for beauty in word, song and nature.

It's too long to run Mrs. Jones, but here's the final stanza. Maybe folks can get the general idea from this one stanza.

"The day went down in the crimson west, And with it the hope of the blessed Guest, And Conrad sighed as the world turned gray; "Why is it, Lord, that your feet delay? Did you forget that this was the day?" Then soft in the silence a Voice he heard; "Lift up your heart, for I kept my word. Three times I came to your friendly door; Three times my shadow was on your floor. I was the beggar with bruised feet; I was the woman you gave to eat; I was the child on the homeless street!"

Cigarette Prices Are Hiked; Cent A Pack

WINSTON SALEM, N. C. (UPI) — The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., following the lead of other major cigarette manufacturers, Friday announced a price increase.

Effective immediately, wholesalers will have to pay $10.25 per thousand instead of $9.80 per thousand for Camels, Tempo, Winston and Salem king size and Doral.

Winston and Salem super kings will cost $10.75 per thousand instead of $10.30.

Reynolds last price increase was in May, 1969.

If wholesalers pass the increase on to consumers, it would increase the price of cigarettes by a little more than a penny a pack.

Commonwealth, showing a frontiersman in a hand shake and shoulder clasp with a statesman wearing a swallowtail coat.

That version apparently evolved from a picture chosen by Isaac Shelby, first governor of Kentucky, who favored a French embrace. The picture showing two men embracing so that only one head is visible was painted by David Humphries in 1793.

However, John Brown, first U.S. Senator from Kentucky, said a seal depicting two hunters was also discussed at the time. The present seal apparently is a compromise.

The wreath surrounding the seal is goldenrod in bloom, designated the state flower by the General Assembly in 1926. The upper portion of the wreath is made up of the words "Commonwealth of Kentucky."

All the official designs of the state flag are filed permanently in the office of the secretary of state.

Cost Of Accidents Locally Reported Over $3 Million

(Special to the Ledger & Times)

NEW YORK, May 30 — From the standpoint of safety, it is much better to be living in Calloway County than in most places in the East South Central States.

For the average local resident, life appears to be less hazardous. The chances of becoming involved in an accident — fatal or otherwise — are not as great as they are elsewhere, according to government statistics.

The local accident record is reflected, along with those of other communities across the country, in the latest vital statistics survey by the U.S. Public Health Service. The surveys are made on an annual basis.

The findings are of particular importance at this time because of the approach of the holiday season with its usually high toll, both on the highway and in the home.

The report shows a total of 15 fatal accidents in the year among residents of Calloway County. Motor vehicles were responsible for 9 of them.

And this is only part of the toll, the National Safety Council points out. It estimates that, for every fatal accident, there are nearly 100 others of a disabling nature that do not result in death.

The figures in the survey take into account accidents of all sorts that affected local people, wherever they may have occurred. They do not include, however, local accidents involving non-residents.

Calloway County's accident toll, in terms of population, was at the rate of 64 fatalities per 100,000 people.

It was lower than the rate reported for the rest of the East South Central States, 71 per 100,000.

It was better, also, than the State of Kentucky rate of 67 per 100,000.

The magnitude of the problem is evident from figures compiled by the National Safety Council. They show that 116,000 Americans died as a result of accidents in the past year.

The overall cost of accidents in 1969, counting medical expenses, lost wages, property damage and the like, is estimated by the council at $23.5 billion.

Calloway County's share of this cost, based upon the average amount per accident, comes to approximately $3,030,000.

Charlie Metro, KC Manager, Called 100 Per Cent Baseball

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Charlie Metro, the Kansas City manager, is what others in his line of business call 100 per cent baseball.

He's also 100 per cent hard work and as near as anybody ever has been able to figure out his biggest sin is that he expects his players to put as much into the game as he does. For feeling that way he once got into a bit of a rumble while handling the Chicago Cubs eight years back and just to show you nothing really changes Charlie Metro is in some deep soup now with his Kansas City players for pretty much the same thing.

Deep soup doesn't exactly describe Metro's present plight. The fact is if the Royals don't hurry up and start winning soon Charlie Metro might be in much deeper soup by June 15. He might be "reassigned" to some other position in the Kansas City network and the brass then might have to figure out whom they wanted as the next manager, Bob Lemon or Joe Schultz, coaching for the club now, or Jack McKeon, managing the Royals' Omaha affiliate in the American Association.

Charlie Metro, by his own admission, is a rigid disciplinarian. That is his greatest virtue. With the players of today it's also his biggest fault.

What the whole thing boils down to is that many of the KC players feel Metro is "too tough" and if there's anything that makes 51-year-old Charlie Metro laugh—laugh sadly not humorously, that is—it's an accusation like that because he could gather all the Royals around him if he wanted to tell them some stories about what "too tough" is really like.

But the fact the Royals finished a surprisingly strong fourth in the American League West last year and now are competing for the cellar isn't forgotten. Nor is it easily forgotten the Royals dropped 17 out of 24 before last night's contest with the Twins.

In Kansas City, one club says:

"It has not reached the critical point."

No matter what happens, Charlie Metro, who is 100 per cent baseball, can't say he didn't go into this with his eyes wide open. Joe Gordon led the Royals home higher than anyone expected last year and then resigned to take a job in the front office. He said the everyday pressure was too

Southern Sidelines

By DAVID MOFFIT
UPI Sports Writer

ATLANTA (UPI)—It's been that sort of career for Tommy Aaron, the golfer.

He finally wins his first U. S. tournament in 10 years on the pro tour and he has to pick the one town where the name Aaron makes everybody think the headline writer is talking about baseball instead of golf.

Although Aaron, the golfer, grew up less than 50 miles north of here at Gainesville, Ga., the name instantly brings to mind Atlanta Braves star Hank Aaron.

And, when you throw the name of Tommy Aaron into a conversation around Atlanta, a lot of folks think you're talking about Hank's brother, who is also a Brave.

But Aaron, the golfer, takes it all in his stride. He'd rather share the glory of winning any day to standing alone when he's been the goat instead of the hero.

Although he's made a good living as a pro golfer during the past decade, Tommy Aaron, the golfer, unfortunately has been known as:

— The playing partner who inadvertently jotted down a wrong score on Roberto DeVicenzo's card and cost the popular Argentinean a playoff shot at the 1968 Masters crown;

— The apparent winner of the 1969 Doral Open until he carelessly grounded his club in a hazard and the two-stroke penalty made him come up one stroke short;

— "The bridesmaid of the PGA" for the fact that he had nine second-place finishes and no victories to his credit.

Actually, that wasn't entirely true. Aaron did beat Sam Snead in a playoff last year to win the Canadian Open but, more of that Aaron jinx, it didn't count on the official list.

Aaron finally got his first U. S. win Sunday when he captured the Atlanta Golf Classic. But, for awhile there, it looked like his 10-year jinx was still right there at his heels.

Tommy had a fat three-stroke lead with only five holes left to play when some wag in the press tent noted that if anyone could figure out a way to blow that lead, Aaron would do it.

So what did he do?

Aaron drove just off the fairway at No. 14. The golfers had been allowed to improve their lies at the Atlanta Classic because much of the fairway grass had died, so Tommy, without thinking much about it, walked up to his ball and picked it up to clean it.

Since his ball was 10 yards much.

Not the pressure of managing, Joe Gordon pointed out, but the pressure of having to deal with "the younger ballplayers,"

No Doubt How Vince Lombardi Feels About American Flag

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Vince Lombardi has been called a lot of things in his time and when you strip all those things away he emerged exactly what he is, a traditionalist.

A traditionalist is a football coach who believes little, if anything, should ever get out of the team dressing room, or to put it another way, everything should be left in the family

Bible. There are many things Lombardi considers private and generally it is a complete waste of time to ask him about any of these things because all you're ever going to get from him if you do is a chilly look and a cold "no comment."

But there are other things the Washington Redskins' intense head coach and general manager feel differently about, so differently in fact, that he virtually wears them on his sleeve. Or even on the lapel of his business suit.

Wears Replica of Flag That's where he is wearing a replica of the American flag these days.

There's no doubt at all how Vince Lombardi feels about the American flag and in case there should be he comes right out and tells you.

"I wear it proudly," he says. "Did you read about that San Diego State football player and how he protected the flag?" Lombardi was asked at a special get-together that included most of the other coaches here for the NFL meetings. "Yes I did," said Lombardi. "His name was Pierson, I believe. I wrote him a letter and told him how proud I was of him and of what he did."

Worked "Damn Hard" Like a great many other people, Vince finds himself in something of a bind these days. He worked, in his own words, "Damn hard" to get through Fordham University as a youth and worked even harder when he got out. He became an extraordinary success later at Green Bay and in many ways his is the typical Horatio Alger story that hardly anybody bothers reading anymore.

"How do you feel about the youth of today?" somebody asked him.

"Look, I don't say shoot them," he answered. "There are so many young people who are great, but so many others only care about destruction. I certainly am not for that, I think there should be a concern about pollution, about Vietnam, about Cambodia and about poverty. I'm concerned about that, too. But when they go around rioting and burning buildings they only get peoples' backs up. They've got mine up, too."

Bears sign 2 defenders

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Bears, in search of defensive backs, have signed two more prospects for the position. They are free agents Jack Erdman from Fresno State and Mike Sviner from San Diego State.

Ivy coaches OK 10 grid games

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (UPI)—Ivy league football coaches have voted to ask their colleges to allow a 10-game football schedule. They now play nine.

FINS 'N' FEATHERS

by LEE SMITH

Welcome to the world of the sneaky. If you enter, you do so at your own risk and you are urged to stay alert at all times. No one is immune to our attacks. We take pot-shots at everything that moves and often hit targets we didn't even 'aim' at. To play in this league you only need a love for people, animals and good natured fun. If you're wearing a chip on your shoulder remember we are wearing the entire tree, therefore, let us all relax and mix a little fun with the seriousness and tragedy so prevalent today.

Our best fun occurs when we bite the dust. Being out of circulation we're not as easily hit as we're accustomed to and it's unfair to snipe you if you don't fight back. Pour on the lead, ol friend, and keep this hunt fair.

MRS. DOROTHY PHILLIPS announces the arrival of four girls and a boy! Get out of that one if you can. Remember I just put you on the spot - Never rescue you.

Lucky for us, we're out of reach of ED PHILLIPS. This gentleman is a good sportsman and a good sport. Haven't seen him in many moons but I seem to recall losing every battle and the war, when attempting to out smart-aleck him. Thank you for the rose. Get out your best buck shot - we're bound to meet again.

Everyone agrees that hunting and fishing stories improve with age and retelling. From our storehouse of unused articles we discovered this one which we would like to share with you. This event took place in August of 69, and was related to us by MR. ROBERT ETHERTON. The gentlemen in our story are great sportsmen, enjoying fishing and all types of hunting. They generally bag some prize game every time they go out. Remember the turkeys and other game they brought home and the struggle to get pictures (which we didn't) however we can enjoy this fishing trip, and hope for some current ones soon. According to Mr. Etherton, DON & EDWARD OVERBY really brought home the bass last week. Taking advantage of the willow hatch they chase a popping bug lure and fly lines to tempt Mr. bass. This feat admirably accomplished as they took the limit on two successive days. The fishing site was center Ridge section of Kentucky Lake. An unusual catch was a 7 lb. bluegill mouth bass (carp to Jr.) They hooked him on the popping bug. These critters normally won't hit artificial bait and Mr. Etherton thinks that is some unusual fishing. If he says so, its so. He is no "slouch" at the fishing game and his bride GLADYS is even better. Bet that remark will start the kettle boiling. Would appreciate hearing an account of the Overby brothers' success this season.

PLAS TIDWELL had two successful fishing trips last week. He and his bride went on Tuesday and brought home catfish a plenty. The lady brought home some real beauties and Plas gave a good account of his time spent. The next day he and two companions repeated the performance, with several cats weighing over three pounds. The quantity was sufficient. They were fishing in deep water in Jonathan's Creek.

This squirrel tale didn't lose anything by being warmed over. BILL HARRELL bagged five Saturday morning. That isn't unusual but this is. NORMA (Bill's bride) bagged six on this bait. To outshoot her husband and then hear him brag about it - now that doesn't happen every day! Would you believe she accompanied her husband on most of his hunting trips and he thinks it's great. That really "blows your cool". Bill and Norma live on the East highway with their 9 year old twins, TIMOTHY AND ANTHONY. Their kennel boast two Bird dogs, Trizie and Duchess plus ten pups.

Those of you that complained so much about the discarded articles, insisting they be used any time - well there is a portion of one. See, we always do as we're told - but man alive there is a warehouse full and when it's read again (after it gets cold) it is really rank! Be sure you want something before you ask for it, you just might get it!

Seen and Heard: Directions on "How to Cook a Husband", ver-ry interesting! Any advise on how to cook a wife or is her goose already cooked? Mean out today, I reckon!

EARL STEELE, a promise is a promise. Where are the Bird Dogs? The most painless method is get it over with quickly. Never believe we just might forget. Ante up friend!

TED ATKINS, Where is the hunt results? Who won what and how about the turn out? Appoint a spokesman and get him on the job. PLEASE, if we're in the field when you call just wait until 3:00 p.m. and call any time there after. Thank You!

You're really square if you can remember when:
1. Owning a pair of nylon's branded you a traitor.
2. You donated cooking pots and pans to make bullets.
3. We "cussed" the war, the president and congress, but never America or her FLAG!
4. Every request was answered with "gladly if it will help our fighting men".

5. Service men and women were welcomed with respect and appreciation. Each one was a hero regardless of how or where he served.

6. We did more working and praying for peace than Flag burning, shouting and rioting.

SHORT SHOTS FROM LBL

Rushing Creek Opens This Week

Rushing Creek, one of the three major family campgrounds in Land Between the Lakes, will open Wednesday, May 27. This popular camping center is located on the Kentucky-Tennessee line just across the lake from Blood River, one of the top crapple and bass fishing embayments on Kentucky Lake. The other family campgrounds include Hillman Ferry, located on the Pisgah Bay Inlet of Kentucky Lake about three miles south of Barkley Canal, and Piney, also on Kentucky Lake just a few miles north of U. S. Highway 79 and the Scott Fitzhugh Bridge. Hillman Ferry opened April 10 and Piney is open year-round. In addition to the family campgrounds there are 20 lake access areas that offer more limited camping facilities. Organized groups are invited to camp at Camp Energy, a group camp located on Energy Lake near the Conservation Education Center.

Empire Farm Demonstration

Sheepshearing exhibitions will be the highlight of the afternoon on Sunday, May 31, at Empire Farm in Land Between the Lakes. Hershel Williamson of Mayfield will shear one sheep every half hour while Ed Veazey, manager of the farm, cards and handspins the wool. The demonstration will begin at 1 p.m. and continue throughout the afternoon.

School groups and other organized groups are invited to make reservations for a tour of the farm which is located in the 5,000-acre Conservation Education Center five miles east of The Trace (Highway 453) on Mulberry Flat Road. This popular facility is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Land Between the Lakes patrolmen walked away with top honors last weekend at the Police Combat Pistol Course Invitational Match at Murray, Kentucky. Sponsored by the patrol, the match was held at the Murray Police and University Security Force Pistol Range and consisted of both individual and team matches. The Land Between the Lakes team received the first - place trophy the Paducah Police Department finished second; and the Paducah Pistol Club was awarded third place. John Hall and Jimmy Garland, Land Between the Lakes patrolmen, took first and second place respectively in the individual competition, and Capt. L. Stubblefield of the Paducah Police Department took third place honors.

7. Americans on the home front rationed sugar, coffee, gasoline and anything else needed by the fighting men.

QUESTION: Where are all those good Americans now? We hated those wars just as much as this one - but it was better than the alternatives.

Hate the war, curse the president and find fault with the policies, if it makes you feel better but respect the Americans who are fighting your battle and America - Love her or leave her! That is the most sensible expression to come out of this hellish war. America needs you. NOW!

Next week the plans call for some fishing and checking Kentucky's Resorts. We just might have some pictures and maybe a story or two. Don't count on it but just maybe. A safe journey of friend and happy funnin'.

FRANKFORT, Ky. - There's fishing galore right now and you don't have to go to the big lakes to find it. More than likely you can find just the fishing you're interested in right in your own backyard, so to speak.

The farm ponds, rivers and streams, so plentiful in Kentucky, are prime targets right now for many fishermen who would be satisfied with a nice string of panfish or some scrapping smallmouth or largemouth bass or a bucketful of "newlights," commonly called crapple or crapple, in our era, whichever spelling you desire.

The major lakes are producing good catches of white and black bass and a good many crapple. Bluegill are plentiful, too, as well as catfish.

The yellow who goes to one of the major impoundments is apt to catch some fish but then the man who fishes the farm ponds and streams is fairly sure of success, also. It's just naturally fishing time and just about anywhere one wants to fish, he'll find entertainment.

But before we get into the farm pond and stream fishing too far, we'd like to point out a fact that almost every fisherman knows, but one he sometimes likes to ignore - even the best fisherman is not going to catch fish on every trip.

Fact of the matter, he'll qualify as a good fisherman if he has ers, and plastic worms are producing good catches of bass on Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley. At Barkley many of the best surface catches are being taken in the shallow water near the back of the embayments. Midday casters are taking good bass on blue and plastic worms along the treetops and submerged stumps of the major embayments and main lake. Bright, sunny days are producing the best bass fishing on Barkley. Several good bass were taken from Energy Lake on popping bugs last weekend. At Kentucky Lake popping bugs and small chugger-type surface lures are producing good early morning catches of bass in the brushy area of the bays. Plastic worm fishermen are starting to pick up bass along the fallen treetops of the main lake, particularly those near the mouths of the embayments. The big crapple in Kentucky Lake are moving to deeper water, with most of the reported catches coming from along the old creek and river channels at 15 to 20 feet. Smaller crapple are still being taken in shallow water.

7. Americans on the home front rationed sugar, coffee, gasoline and anything else needed by the fighting men.

QUESTION: Where are all those good Americans now? We hated those wars just as much as this one - but it was better than the alternatives.

Hate the war, curse the president and find fault with the policies, if it makes you feel better but respect the Americans who are fighting your battle and America - Love her or leave her! That is the most sensible expression to come out of this hellish war. America needs you. NOW!

Next week the plans call for some fishing and checking Kentucky's Resorts. We just might have some pictures and maybe a story or two. Don't count on it but just maybe. A safe journey of friend and happy funnin'.

KENTUCKY LAKE WEEKLY FISHING REPORTS

by GARY NANCE

As you all know the "Memorial Day" holiday is coming up this weekend and the weather is predicted to be great. The fish are biting real good now so all you have to do is get out there and get them. You don't have to be a great fisherman to catch fish, just an everyday normal fellow. So if you plan to fish this week I hope this article will assist you in your fishing weekend.

Now for the dock reports for this week.

Cypress Springs Resort and Boat Dock: Hugh Gray Massey and Hubert Barrow caught 18 large mouth bass last Saturday. They weighed from 2 1/2 to 5 1/2, fishing in the stumps and bushes and off the points. They were using hell-benders and plastic worms.

Crapple is fair in bushes and around stumps using shiners. Blue gill doing well on flies.

Catfish are slow but are biting on worms, fishing on the bottom.

Blood River Boat Dock: Bass doing real good on under water plugs. Weight range from 2 1/2 to 3 lbs. in bushes and stumps.

Crapple doing well in deep water of 12 to 18 feet on shiners around bushes and drop offs.

Jimmy King of Fulton caught 40 crapple today with weight range 1 1/4 to 2 lbs., each.

Catfish doing good on worms on the bottom.

Ken Oak Ron-Reel Resort: Large mouth bass fair on plastic worms.

28 crapple were caught today by Fred Ramsey (owner) in 25 to 35 feet deep water and about 50 feet from channel markers. These fish weighed 1 1/2 to a real nice 2 1/4 pounder. Mr. Ramsey was using medium size shiners.

There was no report on catfish or blue gills.

Ken Lake Boat Dock: Large mouth bass are fair. They are being caught in the bushes on top water plugs such as the hula popper and the devil's horse. These bass are in the size range of 1 1/2 to 2 lbs. and an occasionally a 4 pounder.

Crapple can be caught in 15 feet of water on shiners around the drop offs.

Catfish are biting real good on worms and night crawlers fishing cork and on bottom. These fish are being caught on the rocks and will average out in weight of 2 to 4 lbs.

Blue gill are good on flies and poppers and also being caught on worms on a small No. 6 hook.

Stripes are predicted to start their run in a couple of weeks with any kind of good luck.

Don & Donna's Grocery are putting on a fishing contest and have some good prizes to give away to the winners. For more information go by and see them at the junction of 94 east and the Potter Town road.

That's it for now, hope all of you have a pleasant and happy weekend and may God be with you all.

Smoky The Bear Now The Critic's Target

If there's one American institution that is safe from attack in these days when practically everybody is being attacked by somebody or other, we would have thought it was Smoky the Bear.

But no. Dr. Harold Biswell, professor at the University of California's School of Forestry and Conservation at Berkeley, has leveled his sights on Smoky. What's more, to the non-technical observer, and perhaps to the thoughtful expert observer as well, he seems to make sense.

One of the Medill School of Journalism's fledgling reporters came across a report by Dr. Biswell the other day and found him contending that Smoky's approach to forest preservation actually makes huge destructive forest fires inevitable instead of preventing them.

Dr. Biswell says forest fires are natural. They're nature's way of cleaning up the forest.

Under natural conditions they serve not to burn down the trees but to burn the fuel that accumulates on the forest floor before it reaches dangerous proportions. Dr. Biswell cites a study of the giant sequoias in the Sierra Nevada which showed that brush fires occurred about every two years from 1454 to 1912.

Smoky's policy of preventing forest fires encourages the buildup of large amounts of brush until a holocaust is inevitable, says Dr. Biswell.

"Prior to adoption of our present fire suppression policy," the report says, "a ranger could go out on horseback with his shovel and usually not have difficulty in extinguishing a fire, and little damage was done."

"But today, a fire in the same spot would probably require 20 to 100 men or more with bulldozers, airplanes and tankers and, when the fire is out, the landscape will be badly scarred, with great attendant damage."

Then the Forest Service asks for more money to spend on suppressing small fires, which makes large fires inevitable, says the California.

Dr. Biswell's study seems to have attracted little attention. Perhaps it deserves more. Unlike so many of our problems, here's one that can be grappled with. In a time when everybody is concerned, or says he's concerned, with saving our environment, it shouldn't be hard to set up some experiments to test Dr. Biswell's idea against Smoky's.

How about setting aside two similar forest areas? In one controlled burning would be done periodically. In the other Smoky's formula would be followed. In 10 years we should be able to make some judgments about intelligent forest management.

And we hope Smoky's feelings aren't hurt.

Readers support oriental wives

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: "Oriental Wife's" letter interested me. It's true they have been criticized by western women because of the way they pamper their husbands, but the oriental girl is trained to please a man.

No wonder so many American men marry them. I shudder to see the way some American women treat their husbands, and blush to see the way some men put up with it. I am an English woman, married to a fine American man, and if I could wish two things for England, I would say, "Lower the taxes, and let every English woman have an American husband!" LUCKY ME

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for ORIENTAL WIFE! As an American wife I cut my husband's toenails, wash his back, polish his shoes—and his car—and I even clean out his tool and tackle box. I spoil my man rotten in every way I can think of and love every minute of it.

I, too, have felt the sting of criticism from other wives who do as little as possible for their husbands. I know my husband will never stray, and he would give me the world—and more—if he could.

Giving totally of one's self is the true secret of happiness in marriage. If only more women knew this. MARY IN COVINA

DEAR ABBY: I keep hearing that oriental women are "trained" to care for their husbands.

I am an American wife, and I wasn't "trained" to care for my husband. I do so because I love him. I bathe him, massage his back, rub his feet, and I even shave him. But I enjoy it and don't feel that this "lowers" me or makes me a "slave." He loves me, too, and treats me very well in return. My husband is the head of the house, but that's the way I want it. IN LOVE, BUT NO DOOR MAT

DEAR ABBY: The letter from ORIENTAL WIFE, outlining the dedication she and her sisters have for their husbands, was interesting, and no one can deny that their training contributes to a successful marriage.

But let me say, there are many men in these United States who are truly fortunate to have found American wives with all the virtues she described. I, for one, have a wife who is beautiful, intelligent, witty, loyal, devoted, industrious and cooperative, and I might add, I am not the easiest guy in the world to get along with.

I have traveled extensively in Europe and the orient, so I am not speaking from ignorance. Sign me, "Chuck." COL. (U. S. A. F. RETIRED)

DEAR ABBY: I am not putting down oriental women, but how come we never hear about oriental women going to any of the poverty-stricken areas of the world to be with the men they love? CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: I am sure some have. But how would we "hear" about them?

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose "stamped, addressed envelope."

New Bill Could Mean More Overtime Pay For Employee

(Editor's Note: The Fair Labor Standards Act (generally called the minimum wage and hour law) requires overtime pay at one-and-a-half times regular pay for any hours an employee works over 40 in one week. Representative John H. Dent of Pennsylvania has authored an amendment bill, H. R. 10948, which would require the overtime rate after eight hours a day, regardless of the hours worked in a week. Business owners polled by the National Federation of Independent Business react strongly; 84 percent express opposition, only 13 percent are in favor, and 3 percent are undecided.)

What's the difference between a five-day, 40-hour work week and a week of five eight-hour work days?

Answer: Overtime pay, in some cases, if Congress should change the Federal wage and hour law to the latter.

A Congressional proposal to substitute the eight-hour day for the 40-hour week as the standard on which time-and-one-half overtime is based under the Fair Labor Standards Act meets surprisingly strong opposition in a poll of independent business owners by the National Federation of Independent Business.

Representative John H. Dent, of Pennsylvania, is sponsoring the bill which would require overtime for any work beyond eight hours a day, regardless of the length of the work week. Under this, compensatory time off later in the week would not eliminate the requirement for extra pay for working late one night.

Eight-four percent of the businessmen polled by the Federation express opposition, while only 13 percent support the measure, and 3 percent are undecided.

Businessmen in Kentucky responded with 18 percent in favor, 77 percent against the measure and 5 percent uncommitted.

While the bill may appear, at first glance, to be a technical change of minor consequence, the big majority of businessmen apparently react hotly to the principle: further tightening of regulations, "another turn of the screw" on the employer. The bill would open up a whole new area of compliance problems and likely bring on new layers of red tape and bureaucratic regulations, many businessmen feel.

Many proprietors believe that the thrust of Federal laws in the labor-management field has been one-sided in the employee's favor for much too long, the Federation's research staff concludes from its continuous polls.

Many employers, especially the smaller ones, occasionally find it necessary to ask an employee to adjust his hours, as the work load demands. Working late and taking compensatory time off late in the week is usually satisfactory to both employee and employer. Under Federal law, such time adjustments must be made within the same work week.

Many employers also willingly pay overtime when the crush of work makes a 40-hour week impractical. But the change proposed in the Dent bill would work a hardship on the smallest employers who cannot afford to hire additional help and must keep overtime to a minimum in order to continue in business. In addition, in many rural areas, extra skilled people are not available.

The Federation points out that most business owners know no 40-hour week—or eight-hour day—themselves, and feel that the employee in many cases is better off, everything considered, than the owner. The combined weight of Federal, state and union regulations has helped weaken the concept of "A good day's work for a good day's pay" among many employees.

The bear market we are now witnessing is "the most vicious since the days of FDR and Hoover" and it has "absolutely murdered" numerous stocks, according to Walston & Co. However, the company adds bear markets "usually go way to low, much further than really justified," thus many stocks today will "prove to be cheap" in the long run.

Hayden, Stone, Inc., expects periodic rallies but views anticipation of an aggressive turnaround as "illogical" until some favorable news replaces the current "dark, military, monetary and political clouds."

Bath habit got a boost

NEW YORK (UPI)

The American custom of frequent bathing was started around 1778, by Benjamin Franklin, who defied public opposition by bathing twice a week, so reports Houbigant, a perfume firm that has made a study of America's washing habits.

"Our colonial forefathers weren't too keen on bathing, especially in cold weather," the study said. "Some even thought it was harmful to bathe in cold water and passed laws prohibiting people from bathing and installing tubs in their houses."

In Philadelphia, for example, one bath a month was permitted but anyone who indulged in more went to jail. The method of enforcing this law remains a mystery.

Million Dollar Milestone Reached In Scholarships

A million dollar milestone was reached at the 24th annual meeting of the Rural Kentucky Medical Scholarship Fund. The Fund, since its beginning in 1946, using the revolving funds available, has now loaned over one million dollars. There are 161 recipients of the Fund in practice in 86 of the 120 counties of Kentucky.

The Board of Trustees of the Fund at their May meeting approved $65,500 of loans to medical students for the coming school year, according to C. C. Howard, M. D., Board Chairman. Ten loans were granted to first loan applicants, and 23 to upper classmen. Eighteen recipients plan to attend the University of Kentucky College of Medicine and 15 the University of Louisville School of Medicine. In Calloway County there have been five recipients of the Rural Kentucky Medical Scholarship Fund.

Recipients, receiving loans for the first time are, Eddie L. Bunch, Williamsburg; James Cundiff, Shepherdsville; Robert Henderson, Louisville; E. Gary Hogan, Horse Cave; Benjamin Kutnick, Hazel Green; Larry Maynard, Myra; Jerry Moore, Ft. Thomas; John Patton, Whitley City; William Powell, Lexington; and Joseph Skipworth, Bowling Green. Sixteen of the 1970-71 loan recipients have agreed to practice in counties listed as "critically in need of physicians." Under this plan, a student may borrow up to $2,500 per year by contracting to practice in a "critical" county. One year's loan is waived for each year of such practice.

The ten "critical" counties selected for 1970-71 on the basis of information supplied by the Kentucky Medical Association and the State Board of Health are Jackson, Carter, Butler, Knott, Crittenden, Lee, Powell, Lewis, Meade and McCreary. Ten "semi-critical" areas were also approved by the Board. A recipient who establishes practice in a "semi-critical" area is forgiven one-half of a year's loan for each year of practice in the "semi-critical" area. The areas designated for 1970-71 in this category are Rockcastle, Lincoln, Bracken-Robertson, Garrard, Magoffin-Breathitt, Clay, Owsley, Metcalfe-Clinton-Cumberland, Estill, Edmonson and Owen-Gallatin.

Douglas M. Haynes, M.D., Dean of the University of Louisville School of Medicine and John Mel-senheimer, Ph.D., of Eastern State University, Richmond, Kentucky, were elected as new members of the Board of Trustees of the Fund.

Doctor Howard said that the Board is particularly appreciative of the interest and support of Governor Louie B. Nunn, Health Commissioner Russell E. Teague and the members of the Kentucky General Assembly.

1970 is not 1907 nor 1929, Loeb, Rhoads & Co. says. Not only are there "immense changes of institutional nature" but the current recession was not "triggered by some major distortion in the credit, investment or consumption areas." Rather, it was started as "a controlled experiment" to fight inflation and there is no basis to believe that it "will go out of control," the firm adds.

NEW YORK (UPI)—When viewed in the future with the benefit of hindsight, "the hysterical reactions" to events in Southeast Asia and to recent trends in the domestic economy will "prove to have been unwarranted" Argus Research Corporation says.

Critics of Supreme Court's Douglas Face Uphill Battle Seeking Impeachment

By JONATHAN EDWARDS
Central Press Association
Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Critics of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas face an uphill battle in their efforts to impeach and remove him from the high court.

For Congress has generally shown little taste for such action. No Supreme Court Justice has been tried on impeachment charges since Associate Justice Samuel Chase was acquitted in 1805 after being charged with judicial conduct and with being intemperate and arbitrary.

In the entire history of the federal judiciary, only eight other judges (all from lower courts) have been brought before the Senate for trial. Of these, four were convicted and removed from office, one resigned before he could be tried, and three were acquitted. The last Senate trial of a federal judge occurred in 1936, when Halsted L. Ritter was removed from office.

UNDER the Constitution, the House determines whether a federal official (defined as the president, vice president and all civil officials) shall be impeached. If it does, it presents the charges to the Senate, which then sits as a Court of Impeachment, with a two-thirds vote required for conviction. Impeachment can be for "treason, bribery, and other high crimes and misdemeanors. Conviction is limited to removal and "disqualification from office, although in England fines and imprisonment may also be imposed.

In addition to the nine judges brought before the Senate for trial, only two other federal officials have been tried. President Andrew Johnson, who was acquitted in 1868 by one vote, and Secretary of War William W. Belknap, who was acquitted in 1876.

A special House Judiciary Committee panel is now investigating charges brought against Douglas by House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford, who accused the Justice of "conducting a campaign of writing for propaganda magazines, of having links with "leftist organizations," and of possible connections with underworld figures, including gamblers.

Charges brought against federal judges in the past, including the one Supreme Court Justice, seven district court judges, and one Commerce Court judge, embraced a variety of accusations. They included drunkenness and tyrannous conduct; being intemperate and arbitrary and acting in an unjust manner; tyrannous treatment of counsel and arbitrary conduct; counsel for Southern secession; falsifying expense accounts and use of a private car belonging to a railroad in receivership; using an official position for private gain and accepting loans from litigants; favoritism in the appointment of receivers; and bankruptcy irregularities and income tax evasion.

IMPEACHMENT raises special problems for Congress. Probably the major one is the difficulty the Senate faces in conducting a lengthy trial and still finding time to carry out its regular functions. The trials of Justice Chase and President Johnson each lasted three months.

More recently, Congress has resolved this problem somewhat by dropping charges when an official under fire resigned, although it refused to do so in 1876 when Belknap resigned. It did so in 1926 when Judge George W. English resigned.

In 1946 the House Judiciary Committee refused to press charges against Judge Albert W. Johnson after the Pennsylvania jurist resigned on the grounds it would take up too much of the Senate's time when that body is engaged in so many issues vital to the welfare of the nation.

Publisher Has Space Age Machines

By Jack Simeox

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — A publishing firm with perhaps the most advanced printing equipment in the U. S., was dedicated here today (5:20).

Donald E. Ragsdale, president of the Touchstone Publishing and Computer Typesetting Co., said his company would make Louisville and Kentucky the center of its activities in the future.

And those activities seem like something we might expect in the next century, but almost too far-fetched to expect any time soon.

With the equipment installed at the new Louisville plant, Touchstone will be able to take the text of an entire book transmitted from a distant city by wire, for example, and turn out the printed text here in three days.

State, city and county officials and Chamber of Commerce delegates took part in the dedication. Kenneth F. Harper, Kentucky commissioner of Public Information, was principal speaker.

He called location of the Touchstone installation at Louisville "impressive testimony to Kentucky's ideal environment for development of technological industries," and cited the central location of the state, and Kentucky's "broad and flexible" technical - vocational education program as two of the reasons.

"A recent study of current Kentucky labor trends indicates there has been a substantial increase in non-farm employment," Harper said. "Many Kentuckians have found challenging opportunities in the skilled and technological industries."

Touchstone also has facilities at Lexington and at Indianapolis.

Goss explained that the $1.3 million computer system is necessary in order to properly manage the department's annual budget of almost $500 million and its list of nearly 3000 projects and 8000 pieces of equipment.

The system will provide immediate answers to management questions. Questions typed in English on terminals in the various offices will be answered instantly on an adjacent screen.

Information available from the computer will include project costs and schedule status and identification of all employees.

Past attempts to determine the number of employees in the department has resulted in as many as three answers.

The test for highway personnel will involve data processing operations for six divisions within the department. The first six test files should be fully operational by July 31.

Under a 16-month contract entered into by the department in March, the new computer system will eventually include 15 information files.

TV CAMEOS: Ed McMahon

Entertainer Ed Is Still a Pitchman

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK — With calm good humor, Ed McMahon manages to handle one of the busiest schedules in show business. The 6-foot, four-inch ex-Marine pilot not only does the NBC-TV "Tonight Show" and intermittent series for NBC Radio's "Monitor"; he also acts as spokesman for two national advertisers—a beer company and a rice company—and is president of Unicorn Productions, a wide-ranging creative design company.

For lack of time, Ed had to turn down a role on Broadway last season and offers from summer stock (which he has done in the past.) But in June he will do an important part in a new motion picture, "Lesson Number Ten," being produced by Monroe Sachon, for whom he appeared in the prize-winning movie, "The Incident," in 1967, and his manager Bob Coe has scheduled him for an even larger role—that of an attorney—in another film to be shot next November.

Ed likes to keep working, and has the stamina for it. Part of the secret is his physical fitness; the other part is an amazing ability to relax instantly, anywhere and at any time. He takes five-minute naps, for instance, and awakens fully refreshed.

For several years, McMahon was voted the best announcer in the United States in an annual poll of TV editors. But he is, of course, much more than an announcer. His quick wit and ad lib ability make him a mainstay with Carson on the week night variety videotape and a bulwark for guest hosts on the many occasions when Carson is on leave. On top of all that, he is one of the most convincing salesmen on the airways and consequently one of the most successful.

The earliest and strongest influence in the shaping of Ed's personality undoubtedly was his father who, Ed says, "was self-educated, always up on current events and well-read. He was also very glib and funny. With his cronies, he was a great story-teller, and he said I inherited his gift of gab."

After a year and a half at Boston College, Ed joined the Marine Corps as an aviation cadet. When he graduated from Fighter Training at Pensacola, Fla., he was assigned to teach at the school from which he had just graduated. In his spare time, he acted as M.C. at Camp Shows and ran Bingo games at the Officers Club. He met his wife, Alyce, there and did a very effective job of selling—in that case, himself.

After service in World War II, he decided to finish his college work at Catholic University in Washington, D.C., which has an outstanding Speech and Drama Department. With his wife and first daughter, he went to Washington and learned to juggle half a dozen jobs at one time while going to school.

During his first summer vacation, he worked as a boardwalk pitchman selling fountain pens at Atlantic City, N.J. "We gave the fountain pens away free," Ed recalls with a chuckle. "If people would buy the point. That summer, before going back to school, I sold 15,000 points."

Ed McMahon, a familiar face from the NBC-TV "Tonight Show," not only inherited the "gift of gab" but developed it in a wide variety of selling jobs before trying TV, radio and movies.

selling jobs provided McMahon with priceless experience and he finally moved up to the elite corps of pitchmen, those known as "gadget workers," masters of practical selling psychology who demonstrate with dexterity the wonders of a vegetable slicer or similar utensil.

After graduation from college, Ed joined WCAU, Philadelphia, and was phenomenally successful until recalled into active service during the Korean War. He flew 85 combat missions and won six air medals. In 195

Memorial Day

LEST WE FORGET

Once again, on Memorial Day, we pause to recall, with respect and much pride, the selfless sacrifices of our brave and valiant departed heroes. Gallantly, they marched forth, united as one in defense of freedom. And with unflinching courage and unyielding devotion to cause, they gave their lives so that our precious heritage of liberty might endure. Lest their deeds be forgotten or ignobled, and their sacrifices be in vain, let us all now resolve to be equally steadfast and courageous in preserving that which has been so heroically achieved. Let us dedicate ourselves to ever cherish and uphold that priceless freedom, which is the legacy of those whose memory we honor today.
